Introduction to Energy Basics for High School Juniors & Seniors

Online program offered by Alliant Energy Iowa and Iowa Valley Continuing Education Thursdays February —April, 2023, 1-3 p.m.

Why this new program?

Due to the success of our 2021 pilot program, Alliant Energy IPL is expanding this program across the state! This online program was developed to offer an overview of the energy/utility industry and to encourage students in this incredible career path. Students that successfully complete this program will have the opportunity to apply for summer 2023 paid internships.

How does it work?

Students with an interest in energy careers will join us in this free program covering such topics as: utility basics; electric overview; gas overview; workplace excellence (series); customer service; work styles; computer skills needed for apprenticeships; workplace culture; mechanical skills; safety/ergonomics and more!

What are the next steps?

Please help us identify students that would be interested in the program. Also, a contact at your school for communication on the program and students. WebEx meetings will be offered at a later date to further explain the program to students, parents and school personnel. We need your assistance in “getting the word out,” so students and schools know of this opportunity and can get it on calendars. Students chosen for internships will get to experience the electric, gas, wind, generation (where available) and field design sides of our business. The program is presented by the Alliant Energy Iowa Technical Training team and Alliant Energy subject matter experts along with Iowa Valley Continuing Education professionals. Registrations will open in December 2022. All students that apply can participate in the online program. The program allows flexible scheduling, so if a student can’t attend a “live session,” they can watch the recorded version.
